

Atlanta, GA
October 19, 2008
Circulation: 475,988

Sunday Living

Buyer's Edge

GRAB BAG / SABINE MORROW; smorrow@ajc.com

All prices are manufacturers' suggested retail price.

	WHAT HAPPENS	WHAT WORKS	WHAT DOESN'T WORK	WHAT YOU'LL GET	TO BUY IT
SPRINGFORM PAN La Forme Table with cover, $68, Kaiser	With this springform pan, you can bake, serve, store and transport your dessert to any event. It would make a perfect gift for the baker who likes to share.	This is an attractive pan that's heavy duty. While we like the looks, and the fact that it's leakproof, what makes this pan stand apart is that it comes with a tall, clear acrylic dome, and the removable handle strap makes it the perfect portable cake pan, especially for cheesecakes.	None of the pan's parts is dishwasher safe. The metallic strap handle is a little tricky to latch at first and it's a separate piece, so you have to make sure you don't lose it when you take the pan to a party.	This 10-inch German-made pan is constructed of commercial-weight steel and features a nonstick interior. It's safe to use in ovens heated up to 450 degrees. The pan comes with a serving base, a 3-inch-deep springform ring, and the clear dome, which features a brushed metal handle and is about 5 inches high.	www.kaiserbakeware.com and at The Cook's Warehouse.
PLASTIC CUTLERY Renew dinnerware, $1.59, Diamond	Renew offers a greener choice when it comes to plastic cutlery with this new line of 100 percent recycled plastic dinnerware.	These feature cutouts on the handles, allowing the manufacturer to use 10 percent less plastic than other disposable cutlery. And while they might look delicate, they're pretty strong and can handle just about any dining needs without bending or breaking. They're durable enough to handle a stint in the dishwasher.	They come only in green, so matching them to a decorating theme is limiting. And while Renew is made of recycled materials, they're still disposable, so you might not consider these completely green.	Each box comes with spoons, serrated knives and forks. They come in boxes of 24 and 48. The packaging also is made from recycled materials.	Available at most mass merchandisers and some grocery stores.

JOEY IVANSO / jvansco@ajc.com

Diamond